

KWBWA Member Spotlight

Brigitte Gingerich

Travel Consultant

BGingerich@sympatico.ca

Brigitte's parents instilled a love of travel and adventure at a young age. This passion helped shape her career in travel and love for exploring the world. Her Dad came to Canada with $10 in his pocket. In looking back on his life, it taught Brigitte you can flourish with hard work and courage if you're willing to take a chance. After completing university at Laurier, Brigitte met her husband Jeff, got married and started a family. Life was busy and full of adventure for the Gingerich family. In 2001 Brigitte was laid off and it was at that time she decided to take a chance on a career working as a travel agent. In doing so, this would allow Brigitte an opportunity to travel and the flexibility to stay home with their two children, Kobe and Hanna.

A woman of authenticity, Brigitte lives true to her values, is unapologetically honest and fully in charge of her destiny. Her energy and enthusiasm for life is contagious. Brigitte joined the KWBWA almost 20 years ago. Working from home gave her one day a week to meet with like-minded women and an opportunity to share her love of travel. She appreciates connecting with a diverse group of professional women and making new friends! Over the years Brigitte developed many amazing and long-lasting friendships through the KWBWA. Apart from the love of travel (anywhere and anytime) she enjoys photography, renovating, decorating, cooking, baking, golf and creating art! Most of all, Brigitte enjoys spending time with family, watching Kobe and Hanna spread their wings and of course, being courageous to dream big!

Be a traveller, not a tourist, experience a destination instead of just seeing the sites, connect with the locals and learn about their culture; it's an extraordinary experience you can't buy! – Brigitte Gingerich